KNIGHTS PREPARE TO BUILD HALLS

Patriotic Order Will Furnish Reading Matter at Encampments.

As a result of the action of the supreme convention of the Knights of Columbus increasing the war activities fund to $100,000, the commission will extend its operations to include recreation hall and libraries at a number of the training camps, other than the sixteen principal encampments.

Halls and libraries will be erected at each of the military departments as follows:

Eastern Department: Yaphank, Long Island, N. Y.; Wrightstown, N. J.; Petersburg, Va.; Annapolis, Md.; Southeastern Department: Columbus, S. C.; Little Rock, Ark.; Spartanburg, S. C.; Greenville, S. C.; Augusta, Ga.; Macon, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Anniston, Ala.; Birmingham, Ala.; Hattiesburg, Miss.; Alexandria, La.; Central Department: Chillicothe, Ohio; Louisville, Ky.; Battle Creek, Mich.; Rockford, Ill.; Des Moines, Iowa; Fort Riley, Kan.; Southern Department: Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Fort Bliss, Okla.; Fort Worth, Texas; Houston, Texas; Western Department: American Lake, Wash.; Linda Vista, Cal.; Palo Alto, Cal.; Chairman Col. P. H. Callahan, in charge of these activities, is devoting his entire time at the headquarters of the committee in Washington, and as a result, he has contracts let at the encampments to be first occupied by the national army.

The commission has been fortunate in securing the services of Felix Limong of the New Orleans council as one of its representatives in France, and he is now en route. Brother Limong speaks French fluently, and expects splendid results from his work in France.

NAVY OFFICERS HAVE BIG LAUNDRY LIST

Cleaning of White Uniforms Costs Dollar a Day.

The snow-white uniforms worn by the hundred navy officers on duty in Washington are cool, comfortable and attractive-looking, but the officers have lost all enthusiasm for wearing them on account of the severe tax which keeping them laundered imposes on their pocket-books. One dollar a day is the average cost to each officer for keeping his uniform presentable. The laundry charge $1 for cleaning a uniform, and the least little sooty spot shows up on the uniform like a bullseye on a white background. Secretary Daniels' order that navy officers wear their uniforms has entailed an extra expense of about $30 a month on the officers, and as a result the future admirals of the navy are very much vexed that the Navy Department heads turn a deaf ear to their pleas that more practicable and serviceable uniforms be adopted. Jack tars who have to do their own washing will no doubt aid their indignant to the movement to have some sort of light weight khaki substituted. When the sailors occupied Vera Cruz during the Huerta regime they solved the problem of keeping their uniforms presentable by dying them with coffee-grounds.

JUNK DEALER FIGHTS HABEAS CORPUS WRIT

The petition of Edward Ellison, the junk dealer wanted by the Alexandria authorities, in connection with the looting of freight cars in the yards of the Southern Railway Company, for a writ of habeas corpus was denied yesterday by Justice Hitz, who ordered him turned over to the Virginia authorities. Ellison was indicted in Alexandria, and being in Washington, the governor of Virginia issued a requisition for him, which was honored by the District Supreme Court. Ellison then applied, through Attorney Leon Tolner, for a writ of habeas corpus, declaring that he was not a fugitive from justice. The case will be taken to the court of appeals. Ellison is now out on $2,500 bonds.

RED CROSS THANKED FOR COMFORT BAGS

Soldiers, from Camps, Write Letters of Appreciation.

Many letters of appreciation have been received at the District chapter of the Red Cross from men of the various encampments around Washington who have received comfort bags. These kits are sent at the request of the various camps who furnish lists of the men who have asked for them.

The following are two of the letters, characteristic of the many received by the local chapter of the Red Cross:

"Dear Madam—I am an enlisted man in the Third field artillery, Battery E, at Fort Myer Va.; am a continuous attendant at the Y. M. C. A., and I just received one of your little bags of useful gifts to a young man in service. You sure can believe me that it was accepted most heartily, and it was just the thing I needed most of all, as the buttons on my shirt were beginning to fall off. I thank you and all for the gift very much indeed.

"Your friend as a soldier, "DICK SHY." "Dear Ladies—I received one of your comfort kits, and I find it very useful and convenient. I want to thank you very much for sending them over to us, and I think that is the sentiment of the whole camp. "Very truly yours, "CORP. PERRY COLMAN, "Camp Ordway, Washington."

Contributions received yesterday are:

H. P. Johnson, $75; Dr. Richard Kingman, $25; employees of Biggs Heating Co., $10; "M. H.", $15; George C. Jordan, $10; Mrs. James M. Nave, $1; P. Walker & Co., $1; H. H. H., $1; Harry Lakeman, $2.50; Harry F. Clark, $3; Mrs. Virginia Conner, $10; C. A. Henderson, $5.

RED CROSS MISSION ARRIVES IN RUSSIA

Visitors from United States Deliver Supplies Worth $200,000.

The American Red Cross has received a telegram from Dr. Frank S. Billings, Chairman of the Red Cross Commission to Russia, announcing the safe arrival of the Commission in Petrograd and its receipt of Premier Kerensky's letter. The Commission began its investigation of conditions in Russia. Chairman H. P. Davison, of the Red Cross War Council, on learning of the arrival of the commission, once again the following message to Premier Kerensky. "I have just received a cable announcement of the safe arrival in Petrograd of the Special American Red Cross Commission to Russia. The Red Cross numbers nearly 3,000,000 American citizens among its members, and wants you to know that the sending of this Commission to Russia is a matter of great importance to the United States. We expect it will later administer the tokens of the earnest sympathy of the American Red Cross for the people of Russia in their brave struggle for the establishment of democracy and for the perpetuation of a really independent national existence." The American Commission carried with it medical supplies to the value of $200,000. A second shipment of supplies is now being sent to Russia by the Red Cross. To cover this shipment the War Council has appropriated $160,000.

TWO MILLION AID IN RELIEF WORK

A directory has been issued by the Federal Council of Allied War Charities comprising some seventy-five national organizations engaged in relief work in the countries of the allies and showing that the funds raised by these organizations up to the present time and since the beginning of the war aggregate, in money and the value of supplies shipped abroad, $30,000,000. The directory further states that the organizations represented in the federal council have a membership of more than 2,000,000 persons, with 5,000 branches throughout the United States.

The figures quoted above, it is declared, are not necessarily final, but underestimate, rather than overestimate, the facts.

THE WAR CAPITAL AS YOU WOULD SEE IT YOURSELF

By DAVID M. CHURCH, I. N. S. Staff Correspondent. It's a great big house, and it sits back from the street in great spacious grounds, beautiful in their appearance. In the great big house there sits a great big man, and the great big man sits alone most of the time. Passerby stop to peer through the iron fence and hope for a glance at the great big man. He is Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States and the director of the great war his country has ever taken part in. Moreover, he is the biggest war maker in the biggest war. European Kings may do more actual military campaigning, but nevertheless every one of them realizes that their future success or failure lies pretty largely in the hands of Woodrow Wilson. And he is doing the work all alone, too.

Some one has called him "The Lonely Man in the White House." Whether he is actually lonely or not, none of us knows. But it is a well known fact that never has the White House been less in the social light. Never before have the carriages and motors driving up to the White House door been so few.

Each week the President attends the theater. Always his box is filled with the same people—Mrs. Wilson, Dr. Grayson and perhaps one or two other attaches.

The President is never known to make calls, except a few strictly official and diplomatic calls. So, day in and day out, the chief executive of the greatest nation works on at his war making, always alone.

F-chaps it is his studi's nature which seeks seclusion, but the name, "The Lonely Man in the White House," outwardly seems fitting.

"Good Morning, Judge"

Human Interest Stories of Police Court Happenings. By RUDOLPH PERKINS

The Green-eyed Monster. Carrie Scott has been separated from her husband, Bill Scott, for a few months but she goes to see him at the garage where he works once in awhile. Bill says he has no "chickens" on the string, but with wifey thought otherwise and at last she was able to get him around there and saw him talking to one. Instead of investigating the matter she had some words with the girl and hubby boxed her ears.

The other girl really came to see someone else and her talk with Bill was just accidental. Carrie didn't think so and she went to shy at Bill at Bill's head when she came back again. She had him arrested for assault and the other girl had her arrested for being disorderly. Bill was so mad that his wife was too big to be punished like a child, and on his promise to quit smacking the court released him on his personal bonds. Bill's smack will cost Bill 100 bones.

There's a Reason. "Judge, this yere woman cussed me and I tole her to shut her d—mouth and she hit me with a d—stick," said Matt Neale, complaining about Mary Hall. Matt used to board at Mary's house and one week Matt forgot to pay his board and Mary forgot to give him his thing to eat. Matt could do without eating, but shooting craps, never. Mary knew this and she showed Matt the door. But he was nearsighted and he just couldn't see the door and Mary said, "Get the h— out of here, you onery craphootin, noaccount varmint, mah house ain't no socialized place." But he didn't budge right then, but he did when Mary let bottle come after him and it hurt his feelings enough to have her arrested. The court sympathized with Mary and suspended a thirty-day sentence.

Rather Sudden, Henry. "Judge, Ah was walking down Third street and all of a sudden Ah had mah hand bandaged up," sobbed Henry Smith. Of course there was some cause for all this, but no one gets his head bandaged up for nothing. A couple of weeks ago, Henry was in the same neighborhood "visiting." He didn't know where he was most naturally some remarks about him coming from corner loafers. His girl had moved down that way and he had to go there. A raggedy looking individual said something about Henry being "stuck up" and Henry told him to mind his own business. Ah'll see you later when you lady fren ain't around," said the bum, whose name was Burke. Henry went again Tuesday night and as he rounded the corner—that was all he remembered. Burke was arrested, and left $10 in court. Bricks are very plentiful down there.

Josie Was Dreaming. Coming down Four-and-a-half street Tuesday afternoon Josie Walker met a friend she hadn't seen for a long time. He was a new fellow, but she didn't get around to call on him. They walked down the street for a few blocks, stopped in a lunchroom, had a few beans and a couple of drinks of (the war raising kind), and went to the movies. When Josie got home her hubby was waiting and he knew all about it. Josie went to kiss him and then dozed off. He was by her side and he was just for luck. When she came to ten minutes later she hollered murder, and a cop rushed in to take out the dead. Instead he arrested Josie. Hubby had disappeared and Josie went alone to the cooler. And she didn't have the $5 to pay her fine, either.

The Villain Was Foiled. Henry Barry had an argument with some boys in Georgetown the other day and it didn't end just right. Henry thought, the next day he tried to buy a gun, but the storekeeper was suspicious and refused to be a party to a heinous crime. This made Henry sore and he told the man what he thought of him. The storekeeper made a mysterious sign and Detective Scrivener hopped in and grabbed Henry. His whole plan for vengeance gone to the bow-works, Henry got riled and soaked Scrivener in the back of the neck and for a little while things hummed, but Scrivener got his man to the box and the lockup. As it was Henry's first offense he was given a thirty-day sentence, the execution of which was suspended.

Toot, Toot, He's Gone Away. The war has made everything go up. It now costs $25 to sleep on a park bench, and we don't dare mention what the Willard would charge to allow you to sleep on the cellar stairs. Harry McCarthy did not have the price to go to that swell hostelry and he laid his weary head on a bench in the Smithsonian grounds. A cop was walking about 100 feet away and thought that he must be near a distillery.

No; quite, but the air was so strong, that he had to remove Harry before other people in that locality began to stagger. He lifted Harry gently so as not to spill anything and deposited him on a silk quilt in the patrol wagon back to the jail. The court only last Monday Judge Pugh said $25 or ninety days.

Might Work in Florida. Homer Cleghorn came up from Florida a few days ago to join the army. He had been turned down in Florida because he lacked a few pounds. He was directed to Washington to try his luck again. He never thought of eating raw eggs and milk to increase his weight, but he did load on some stuff that went to his head. Nevertheless he added a few pounds, but it didn't stay with him very long and he had to do it all over again several times. His feet were not used to carrying the additional weight and they went back to the jail. Pugh told him that milk and eggs were cheaper and more nourishing and they have never yet been known to go to a man's head. But Homer pleaded that he was allowed to fight the Huns and on his promise to board the water wagon he was placed on probation.

USE OF PAPER CANS URGED BY OFFICIALS

Tin Production Shows Pressure of War Necessity.

A census of tin plate production as compared with mill obligations just completed by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce brings out some very interesting facts in connection with the shortage of tin plate throughout the world.

Returns received from fifteen of the leading tin plate producers of the country indicate an increase of approximately 25 per cent in the domestic production of tin plate this year, over last year, the returns for this year being actual for the first half and estimated for the second half. The amount of this year's production for export is about one-tenth of the total production of the plate that can be produced this year and the first couple of months of 1918 has already been contracted for to be delivered during this year.

It is understood that the utilization of fiber and paper cans as substitutes for the ordinary tin cans has been quite successful, and that our European allies are considering their availability to meet the shortage in those countries.

TO INCREASE SHIP-BUILDING ON LAKES

Shipbuilding facilities on the Great Lakes are about to be increased. Marine engineers and shipbuilders have recognized in the combination of concrete and steel, a shipbuilding material of great durability, density, rigidity and with sufficient elasticity to mark it for special favor. Steps are now being taken to begin the construction of reinforced concrete ships on the Great Lakes at the earliest possible date.

The company has already prepared a number of designs for Torcrete ships, lighters, and barges, which have received strong endorsement from those who have inspected the plans. These plans have also been submitted to the United States government and to the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation, with a view to assisting in the rapid construction of a merchant marine.

BUSINESS FAILURES FEW IN WASHINGTON

Court Records Show Decrease in Bankruptcy Petitions.

Contrasted with other large cities, Washington has a surprisingly small number of business failures, if the court record is to be considered a good barometer. To date from January 1 only thirty-three petitions in bankruptcy have been filed. Of these 23 were voluntary and 10 involuntary. This year's record so far is better than that of 1916, when 36 petitions were filed, 14 voluntary and 22 involuntary, or a little over one a week. For 1917 the record so far is one every eight days.

1915 was even better than 1916, only 13 firms or persons went bankrupt. Of these 14 were involuntary and 23 voluntary, about one a week. 1914 exceeded 1915 or 1916, and will exceed 1917, according to the present outlook. Seventy-five bankruptcy petitions were filed, 13 voluntary and 62 involuntary. One and a half petitions a week were filed during that year.

The amounts involved run anywhere from $250 to $50,000 for all these periods. The firms are plumbers, picture shows, dressmakers and milliners, grocers, druggists, florists, etc. Individuals, bakers, butchers, office supplies, drygoods stores, plasterers, carpenters, garages and auto supplies, doctors, dentists, lawyers, cafes and hotels.
